Died Unexpectedly on Friday Morning. Again this community has been called to mourning. It was nothing less than a shock when the news of the death of Mrs. M. L. Egleston, our postmaster, became generally known on Friday morning. Several weeks ago she had feyer, but with characteristic devotion to duty she remained at the postoffice attending to her duties. At last, her strength failed, and upon the entreaties of her physician, she went to bed about ten days ago. It was soon discovered that she had tvphoid fever, but she began to improve rapidly, and her recovery seemed certain. Her system, however, had been on a very great strain, and on Friday morning at 1 o'clock the members of her family were astounded to find that she was dying. The immediate cause of death is supposed to have been heart-failure, superinduced by overexertion during fever.
